Centris.ca Exported to Vancouver

Montreal, May 14, 2019 – Within the framework of a long-term technology partnership, Centris and the Real Estate Board of Greater Vancouver (REBGV) have created the new Realtylink.org website, built on the same structure as the centris.ca website.

This was the first time that Centris exported one of its Quebec creations outside the province. Realtylink.org is adapted to the British Columbia real estate market and proposes a modern and innovative experience to the public. The new Realtylink.org website offers the same benefits that position Centris.ca in its own market, such as the dynamic and configurable search engine. The website also offers the Walk Score, the ability to explore a home's location through Google Maps, real estate industry news, as well as local and regional statistics.

“It’s a powerful tool based on proven technology. We’ll continue to work with our Centris partners to add features and data to improve and grow the site over time,” said Brad Scott, CEO of the REBGV.

By combining their resources, Centris and the REBGV have developed a unique interface design that is tailored to the local market. Centris is very pleased with the outcome and intends to continue creating technology solutions that meet the real estate industry's growing needs.

“As a real estate association–owned company, Centris is proud to partner with the REBGV to provide a world-class online experience for BC home buyers and sellers,” said Éric Charbonneau, president of Centris.
